S. S. CONVENTION

Largest in History of Lawrence County.

Nearly All Schools Represented by Delegates and Great Interest Shown Throughout.

It is the unanimous opinion of those who attended the nineteenth annual convention of the Lawrence County Sunday School Association, held in this city July 1 and 2 that it was the best one ever held in this county. It was numerously attended and by delegates from all sections of the county.

The hospitality of our people was large and generous. So far as we can learn no delegate was disappointed, and if any did not get the full benefit of this hospitality it was entirely due to the fault of the committee who had this important matter in charge. The various sessions of the convention were held in the Southern Methodist Church, and all the meetings were largely attended. The extremely hot weather did not seem to be any hindrance upon attendance and it did not lessen the enthusiasm of the workers in the cause.

In addition to the regular proceedings remarks were made some not in the printed order. Notably among these was Mrs. Sallie G. Ragan, of Louisville.

The interest throughout the very pleasant and instructive gathering of Sunday school workers was well maintained, all evidently feeling that it was good to be there.

We think that the following is a very complete list of the delegates present. It shows how general was the attendance. Of course the name of no one is intentionally omitted.

Milton Barnett, Fred Henry Hughes, Dale Patsy Shannon, Gallip, W. M. McKel, Blaine, K. C. Roberts, Louisa, Wm. H. Vaughan, Louisa, Oscar Chaffin, Fred Hannah Nelson, Madge Julia Burke, Potter, O. J. Fiscal Court Proceedings.

A called session of the Fiscal Court was held in Louisa on the 1st of this month, all the court being present. The principal business transacted was the measure adopted for the repair of the bridge across Georges creek. H. Highberger was appointed a special commissioner to have the work done. He will prepare plans and specifications and publish the same as soon as possible. He will call for bids, and the entire matter will be in his hands.

It was ordered that the root of the court house, the jail and jailer's residence be well protected. Adeline Burton will have this matter in charge and will receive $10 for the work. R. W. Hay was allowed $750 for work done some time ago on the bridge across Georges creek. And the court adjourned.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH

Celebrated at Louisa. With the Usual Large Crowd Present.

Louisa enjoyed a safe, sane and sensible Fourth. A large crowd of people, well dressed and well behaved, passed the day in the celebration of the county and helped us celebrate in excellent style.

At a very early hour Jeff Wilson, who led everybody in a peculiar celebration of sled, bells, rags and rattle, was in the town. Two big teams harnessed on a sled drawn by a horse driven by Jeff made the rounds of the town and told the sleeping population that the celebration of July 4th had arrived. There was no sleeping after this, and everybody got up and began preparations for the celebration.

About 10 o'clock a procession was formed and headed by the Louisa F. C. Band. It made a circuit of the town. When this was over, the crowd, or as much of it as could find room, gathered on Main cross street, opposite the courthouse. Here the various races were run, of which mention will be made particularly later.

The expected center of the day had not arrived and Mr. G. W. Castle kindly consented to speak to the crowd. Mr. Castle made a rattling good speech of some fifteen or twenty minutes duration and greatly pleased all his hearers, and if you were one in half a mile of him you were one of the lucky ones.

Short as only sports was indulged in until dinner time. After dinner a large number went to Fountains Park where the ball game and the horse racing occurred. In the latter event Junior Allison rode G. W. Castles horse to victory.

The ball game was very exciting. The Wayne (W. V.) club lined up against the Louisa aggregation. The club from the other side of the creek was an all star combine, but in thirteen innings Louisa was victorious by a score of 8 to 7.

In the foot race for men, Will Prince was winner, and Cecil Reed and P. Edwards won the prize in the foot race for boys.

Charley Justice won the potato race. The prize in the wheelbarrow race went to F. Thompson. John Copley was adjudged the best thrower.

The sack race was a tie between Kinzie Pigg and Mont Ball. Best dancing, Miss Burton. For best decorated wagon Misses Kizzie Burns and Robert Dixon tied. Jeff Wilson and Chand Wilson tied for the prize offered for the best calthumpian. During the afternoon several balloons were sent up.

Nothing whatever of an unpleasant character occurred to mar the celebration of the day. There was no drinking, disorderly and not the slightest disorder. El Dorado was open all day, affording fine amusement for hundreds.

The weather could not have been pleasanter if it had been made to order. It was cloudy all day, with a gentle breeze—no rain, no hot sun, no dust. It was a pleasant day in all respects, one to be remembered.

The Coal and Railroad Situation.

In speaking of the coal and railroad situation in Eastern Kentucky, the Manufacturer's Record has the following:

The stores of fuel in the hills are tremendous, almost not believed, excepting by those who have looked into them, yet notwithstanding that these resources of nature are so far in excess of any immediate demands to be made upon them, the railroad facilities to meet the demands of the near future are inadequate, and they must be enlarged and improved, or else the South's industrial growth would fail of its possibilities. Therefore we may expect to see more railroad building and more connections for getting out the coal.

An acre of coal land will produce from 5,000 to 10,000 tons of freight, or acre of agricultural land should annually produce one-third to one-half a ton of freight, and in some cases a ton. Thus an acre of coal land when mined will yield as much freight in one year as an acre of agricultural land would produce in 100 to 200 years or more. It is any wonder that the railroad roads are so anxious to strike the coal fields of the South, which in extent and richness far exceeds the coal fields of all Europe?

Rev. Jerry Engle Dead.

Rev. Jerry Engle died of pneumonia last Friday night at Fairmont, W. Va., aged 71 years. Rev. Engle had a severe cold which developed into pneumonia, and gradually grew weaker, until the end came. He was one of the best known ministers in the M. E. Conference and has held some of the most important charges in the State. Rev. Engle was Lieutenant in the Union Army, and was a prominent member of the G. A. R. He married Miss Jennie Everett, daughter of the late Col. Tilton W. Everett, of Gaymansville, about the year 1877, to which union were born four children, three sons and a daughter. Tilton W. Harry, William and Mrs. Harry Dobson, the latter residing in Pittsburgh. Rev. Engle was known by many in this city, and was a brother in law of Judge L. T. Everett. (Chattanooga Tribune.)

Mr. Engle was well known in this city. Through his wife, formerly Miss Jennie Everett, he was related to many prominent Louisa families.

The Rev. F. F. Shannon.

The Rev. Fred Shannon, wife and Frederick, the Rev. arrived from Brooklyn on Friday evening last. They are welcomed by a host of friends in Louisa, the birthplace and former home of Mr. Shannon.

A good part of Mr. Shannon's vacation will be spent in Louisa, and the NEWS is glad to announce that he will preach in the Southern Methodist Church on next Sunday morning.

Mr. Shannon will attend the Summer School of Theology at Northfield, Massachusetts, returning to Brooklyn by the second Sunday in September.

Blackberries in our Midst.

Yea, truly, "In our midst." The white promise of the spring has grown to full fruition and the dusty, juicy blackberries are coming by hundreds. Some Southern poet speaks of the succulent berry as being "sweet as remembered kisses." Yum, Yum! We remember a few of the latter and are prepared to bear witness to the truthfulness of the simile. Louisa housewives know how to "put up" the blackberry in fifty-seven different ways, and nature has provided a way in which they taste mighty good as they go down.

In the Court of Appeals.

Bowling vs. Brethitt, Coal, Iron & Lumber Co.—Filed June 10, 1909. Appeal from Knott Circuit Court. Opinion of the court by Judge Holson, affirmed.

James Goble for appellant; J. J. C. Bach, Smith & Combs for appellee. Rice, etc., vs. Ford.—Filed June 18, 1909. Appeal from Floyd Circuit Court. Opinion of the court by Judge Nunn, reversing.

James Goble for appellants; Mny & May for appellee.

SCHOOL TEACHERS

Will Receive Good Pay This Year.

Per Capita in Kentucky Will Be Four Dollars. The Highest on Record.

Frankfort, Ky., July 6.—School teachers of Kentucky will receive the largest salaries that they have ever received as a result of the fixing of the school per capita today at $1 the largest that has ever been allowed. This means that nearly $4,000,000 will be paid by the common schools of the State. Under this per capita the minimum salary to school teachers will be $33.33 and the maximum $66.66 as compared with a minimum of $25 only two years ago.

The following statement was issued late this afternoon by Prof. J. G. Cullie, State Superintendent of Public Instruction:

Frankfort, Ky., July 6.—The State School Fund estimated and distributed for the payment of teachers for the fiscal year, ending June 30, 1909, amounts to $2,975,000.

The per capita is declared $1.00. The per capita last year was $3.99. This year is an increase of 10 cents. Hence this per capita for the year 1909-1910 is the largest in the history of the State.

The school census showing pupils distributed in reports as follows:

Boys in counties 541,979
Girls in counties 542,229
Total 1,084,208

The school census last year was 1,032,000 pupils. This year the increase is 52,208 pupils.

I congratulate the teachers of the State. On July 22, 1908, in declaring the per capita last year, I said, "We are inaugurating here and now the largest forward movement of schools in Kentucky since the past forty or fifty years," and today I repeat it. We are inaugurating here and now the largest forward movement of schools in Kentucky since the past forty or fifty years. You will see this sentence again. Better help now. Respectfully submitted,

J. G. Cullie, Superintendent.

The Chattanooga Empire is speaking of the large per capita rates. The revenue and taxation law passed in 1906, in Governor Lockhart's administration, is beginning to work well, and it is the money raised in that way that enables the per capita to be increased. It is expected that the per capita will be even larger next year.

Quite a Shocking.

A very severe electrical storm visited a portion of Louisa on last Thursday afternoon. About half-past two o'clock a bolt of lightning descended in the northwestern part of the town, and the shock was severely felt by all the residents of this section bounded by Lady Washington, Perry and Pike streets.

Mrs. Emma Allen and baby were rendered insensible, and for quite a while it was thought that the child was dead, but by the use of restoratives all were revived. Several others in that vicinity were severely stunned. The lightning struck the roots of a tree opposite the residence of Col. Jay H. Northrup. It covered the sidewalk with dirt but did no damage. Mrs. J. M. Turner and little daughter were sitting on the porch not more than twenty feet from the tree but fortunately neither mother nor child was injured. A nearby telephone was put out of commission by the bolt.

Grandson of O. D. Garred Burned.

Edgar, the 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Crow, of the Florence Hotel, was seriously injured on Monday afternoon by the explosion of a gas pipe cannon in the back yard at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Garred, of Huntington. The victim of the accident and a number of his companions were celebrating the Fourth as children always do, when the accident took place. A cannon had been made from a section of gas pipe and loaded with a heavy charge of powder. The fuse was lighted and lamed down to the powder, but for some reason the charge failed to explode.

After waiting a moment Edgar Crow walked over to the cannon and looked into the "touch" hole. At that instant the fire reached the powder and it exploded, blowing the cannon pieces and sending the recoil of fire and lamed powder into the child's face, terribly burning and lacerating it. He was taken immediately to a hospital where his injuries were treated. It is feared that his sight will be much impaired.

Will Go Into Camp.

About a dozen of Louisa's finest will soon go into camp for several days near Chapman. What an ideal place for a camp of gentlemen, eh? Chapman! The young ladies will be only chaperoned, and none of them will doubtless have a clasp of her own.

KILLED IN PISTOL DUEL.

William Justice, of Grayson, Meets Death at 4th of July Dance.

William Justice, of Grayson, was killed in a pistol duel at a Fourth of July platform dance at Foley, Logan county, on last Tuesday night, his slayer being Shad Baldwin, the town marshal of Foley. The killing is said to have been indirectly the result of an old quarrel between the two men, although it is said to have arisen immediately out of an attempt by Justice to interfere with Baldwin while the latter was beating a woman.

Foley is a mining town six miles above Logan, on Digress Run. The people of that community had made great preparation for Fourth of July celebration, part of which was to be a platform dance at a platform owned and conducted by Justice. The dance began with a great number of people in attendance.

It seems that Baldwin had gone to the dance accompanied by a woman, relative, said to have been his daughter. During the progress of the revel this woman in some way aroused the jealousy of another woman, who attacked her, inflicting a severe beating before Baldwin could, or did, interfere. When he did interfere, however, he attacked the second woman fiercely, knocking her down and kicking her. At this juncture Justice appeared, ordered Baldwin to leave the woman alone and not to kick her again. Heedless of the warning, Baldwin struck the prostrate woman with his foot, whereupon Justice pulled a revolver and fired at him. Baldwin coolly knocked aside the weapon of his adversary, drew his own revolver and shot, the bullet entering Justice's side, producing instant death.

The affair created tremendous excitement, and as the bystanders were loath to take up the quarrel, it looked for a time as if there might be more serious trouble. The disturbance was quelled after a time and the crowd dispersed. Baldwin was arrested. The body of Justice was taken to Logan, prepared for burial, and then shipped to Grayson for interment.

A man named William Crispin was fatally wounded.

Off For Texas.

Bill Jim Chaffin, Ec. Berry, of Blaine, and Billie Burton, of Lick Creek, left here on last Monday morning, bound on a voyage of exploration. They will go to Houston, Texas, and incidentally they will see what the country looks like. It is to be a trip for rest and recreation, and each denies having the slightest symptom of western fever.

Three Thousand Ovens.

The Marrowbone Coal & Coke Co. has let a contract for three thousand ovens on the Marrowbone branch of the C. & O., about twenty miles above Pikeville. The work on these coke ovens has already begun.

Oldest Mule in Kentucky.

From Frankfort comes the story that former Adjutant-General Henry R. Lawrence, of Cadiz, has discovered what he thinks is the oldest mule in the world. This particular "Maud" is a resident of Rutherford county, Tennessee. The mule is owned by Mike Hayes, and is known to be 39 years old, and may be older. She has been in the possession of Hayes for 36 years, and has helped raise his entire family.

The most peculiar feature of this "Maud" is that she has never been known to kick. Hayes worked her until a few years ago, but since then she has been living on her accomplishments of the past.

The NEWS does not doubt any part of this story, but the Bluegrass people must "come again." Upon the Stafford fork of Rockcastle is a mule much older than Mike Hayes' animal, and the Honker mule in Pike county—she must be dead by this time—had an established record of 47 years.

Maud's "peculiar feature," never known to kick, ought not to be at all peculiar. It's all a matter of training and use, not breaking and abuse. A mule, properly treated, is the most valuable animal in the service of man. Weight for weight it is stronger than a horse, more patient, more easily kept, not half so "scary," and far more intelligent. Mule owners who give more kicks than corn and more blows than bedding should try the virtue of good care awhile.

Kentucky Coal Productions.

But for increased developments in the mountain regions of Kentucky, especially in Floyd, Johnson, Lee and Pike counties, the production of coal in Kentucky would have shown a much greater decrease for the year 1908 than was actually shown. The production in Western and Southeastern districts showed a heavy falling off, but the Northeastern districts made a gain on account of the increased development and opening of new mines. The total output of coal in Kentucky, according to the annual report made to Governor Willson by C. J. Norwood, chief inspector of mines for Kentucky, was 9,805,777 tons, of which the greater part was shipped to market. The total receipts at the mines made the price per ton about $1, the total selling value being $9,776,762.

Prof. Norwood recommends more attention to the making of coke, especially in the Big Sandy Valley, which has an especially fine grade of coal for this purpose. There has been an increase of more than 35 per cent. in the number of persons employed in coal mines in the last four years. Prof. Norwood shows, the number having grown from 13,906 in 1904 to 18,611 in 1908. During the year thirty-nine persons lost their lives as a result of accident at, near or in mines.

Heavy Rain.

There was a terrific down pour on last Monday night and Tuesday, and Log River raised several feet. The boom on Wolfe creek broke and let out a great number of logs. The rise carried away the coffer dam at Salt-peter, and the overflow along the creeks did great damage to growing crops. There was, eighteen feet of water here but the rise in Levisa was small.

Observed the Fifth Also.

While our people generally observed the 3rd of July instead of the 4th, many of them renewed their devotion to the flag—and the lunch basket—on Monday, the 5th. Cliffside offered various attractions, the railroad made a reduced rate, and about thirty Louisians spent the day in Catlettsburg, the park and Ashland. The weather was ideal and the day was enjoyably spent.

Telephone Directory.

The new directories of the Louisville exchange of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company have just been delivered to each subscriber, showing the changes and new stations installed since the last issue.

This company is making many improvements in the Big Sandy Valley. The Louisa exchange will soon be the central office in Kentucky.

The Tariff Situation.

Here is the tariff situation in a condensed form, so that an can understand it:

Twenty-nine million persons in the United States are engaged in productive industries.

Of these—
Ten million till the soil.
Seven million are engaged in domestic and mechanical pursuits.

Five million are in trade and transportation activities.

Seven million are engaged in domestic, personal or professional services.

Out of the above grand total—
One hundred and fifty thousand are employed in manufactures.

For their benefit principally (at least exclusively) the tariff is being raised from the 44.8 per cent average of the Hawley rates to the 60 per cent (plus the maximum of 25 per cent equals 71 per cent) of the Aldrich bill.

This works out a heavier tax on the 29,000,000 tolling, low-paid wage-working producers for the benefit of 150,000 stock-holding, highly-compensated, prosperous manufacturers.

Is that fair? Or a good thing?

The Modern Mary.

Mary had a little lamb; it's fleece was white as snow. Would Mary ever sell the lamb? Why, what a question! No. She kept the lamb in luxury for many, many years, and every now and then she'd do and clip it with her shears, then sell the fleece and take the cash and put it in the bank, until she had a fortune of the topmost rank. While Mary was a wise young girl, her father had a pail, and through his hobbying he kept the tariff up on wool.

Destroys Hair Germs

Recent discoveries have shown that falling hair is caused by germs at the roots of the hair. Therefore, to stop falling hair, you must first completely destroy these germs. Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula, will certainly do this. Then leave the rest to nature.

Does not change the color of the hair.

Formula with each bottle. Show it to your doctor. Ask him about it, then do as he says.

Recent discoveries have also proved that dandruff is caused by germs on the scalp. Therefore, to cure dandruff, the first thing to do is to completely destroy these dandruff germs. Here, the same Ayer's Hair Vigor will give the same splendid results.

Lexington, Ky., July 4.—There was some decrease in production of petroleum in the Kentucky fields last month, and new work shows some decline. Some districts present a fairly active appearance, and the drilling and starting of new wells continues with little abatement, but the work is largely confined to districts that have been under development for some time. The continued low price of petroleum has put a damper on operations in the main developments, and this, with the mid-summer state of lethargy which usually prevails, gives little encouragement to the idea that the field will witness much activity during the next few weeks.

Oil now commands only 75 cents per barrel. This is a decline of 25 cents per barrel from the price which was quoted during the earlier part of this year and most of last year, and a number of operations in the State have become a source of loss rather than of profit. The low price affects the smaller wells particularly, and many of this class have been closed. June production approximated 47,000 barrels, a marked decline from the preceding month's record. For a week the production averages about 40,000 barrels.

At the beginning of the month the only districts in the State which are receiving the usual attention are the more established pools of Wayne county. The record of the past week is well up to the average, showing a number of nice clets. What is probably the best completion of the past week in Wayne is a completion by a West Virginia company in the Randlesville district, a new strike.

One starting out at forty barrels daily. In the lower end of the county, where developments have been "veed" with him. Can you imagine what she would have done if she had been real mad at him?

This territory is toward the Mt. Pisgah wells. In the same direction a fifteen-barrel well was drilled by Pennsylvanians early in the week.

Some wells are reported starting in Lawrence county, near the West Virginia border. A recent strike showing a good quality of oil in a deep sand started a period of leasing in that end, and efforts will be made to follow up the initial venture. The scene of the new operations is not far removed from some West Virginia developments, and operators from that State are securing leases on the Kentucky side. The prospects are for quite a little test work during the next few weeks, with the probability of an extended drilling campaign if other paying wells are found.

In districts of upper Kentucky nothing is doing outside Wolfe county. In that field one strike was made last week good for ten barrels.

Grayson items.

Mrs. Myrtle Green Horton, wife of farmer John D. Horton, of near town, was stricken with over-heat and died Friday. Her remains were taken to Breath for interment. The deceased was a daughter of Col. Alvin Horton, and was related to many prominent people of Ashland and Grayson. Besides the husband, she leaves three small children.

John M. Webb, Willard's well known and popular banker and business man, continues in very poor health, and is not able to leave his bed.

At King's Chapel there was a party being held, with dancing on the table, and throwing all about that made beasts of men. Hell generally was raised, and, when the smoke of battle cleared away, a young man named Edith Baker found an extra hole in his body, made by a bullet.

Edith Baker, daughter of Charles E. Baker, both being life-long citizens of Louisa, was killed by a bullet which had been fired from a gun owned by Lawson that morning. Baker lay die, and his death may be charged to the lapid damper which slipped from West Virginia's hand.

Lawson's father was killed by a bullet many years ago.

Notice.

The Admiration and Guardianship of the Court, at Louisa, Ky., on the 10th day of July, 1929, at 10 o'clock, A. M., the following notice is hereby given: That the undersigned, J. C. Thompson, J. L. C. C.

ACKNOWLEDGE IT.

Louisa Has to Bow to the Inevitable.
Scores of Citizens Prove it.

After reading the public statement of this representative citizen of Louisa given below, you will come to this conclusion: A remedy which cured years ago which has kept the body in good health since, he relied upon to perform the same work in other cases. Read this:

J. B. Peters, Rock Avenue, Louisa, Ky., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have come more to me than all the other kidney remedies I have ever taken. I was in constant agony from kidney complaint. If I sat down for more than ten minutes and then attempted to get up, it seemed as if a heavy weight were tied to my back and at once the sharp pain started a couching fit. When I stopped going to the bathroom and tried to go to bed, being unable to sleep, I was forced to get up and go to the bathroom. The remedy was given me by a friend who had been cured of the same complaint. I have since used Doan's Kidney Pills and feel like a new man."

Mr. Peters gave the above statement of his experience with Doan's Kidney Pills in January, 1929, and when interviewed on June 21, 1929, he said: "The public statement I gave in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills last year still holds good. During the past eighteen months, I have taken a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills now and then as a general tonic. You are welcome to continue the publication of my former testimonial."

Physical Education in the Schools.

One of the most important actions to the Kentucky Educational Association which concluded its meeting at Louisville Springs recently, was the development of plans for the physical education and training of the school children of Kentucky, a work which has heretofore been absolutely neglected in this State. Up to this time physical education has been confined entirely to the colleges and a few of the city schools, while among the public generally, and the rural population especially, it had been considered nothing but a fad.

At the Louisville Springs meeting, however, the Educational Association decided to take up the question of universal physical education as a practical question for which there was a crying need, for its application to all of the public schools of the State.

As an important step in this direction the department of physical education of the Kentucky Educational Association, which was organized at the 1908 meeting of the Association at Frankfort with Mrs. R. J. Stout, dean of women at Kentucky State University, as president, was represented at the Louisville Springs meeting by the Kentucky Educational society which was organized last winter during the visit to Kentucky of Dr. William Gilbert Anderson, of Lake University. These consolidated organizations became the Kentucky Physical Educational Society and constitute the department of physical education of the Kentucky Educational Association. Next fall the society will affiliate with the American Physical Educational Association, which is the national scientific body that has for its object the physical betterment of the citizens of the country and especially the promotion of more adequate provision for the physical education of the school boys and girls.

STATE CAPITOL

New Building Will be Occupied About September First.

Three moves are said to be as good as a fire, but fortunately for the State only one move will have to be made to transfer the property of the State from the present buildings "on the Square" to the new building "on the Hill." Just what a task it will be moving the departments of the State Government, clear across the town is not fully understood. It will not be simply a matter of picking up a few papers and loading a street car. If such a thing can be located and getting off at the new Capitol "moving" will require several weeks and much hard work, for tons of records and old papers will have to be transferred from the old to the new building.

Frank Kavanaugh State Librarian, will have the hardest job of any of the State officials. He has some ten like 3000 books, in the law library name, which will have to be moved, and then, after they are in the new building, these books will have to be arranged, classified and put in their proper places on the shelves. This is a tremendous task, and Mr. Kavanaugh has everything so systematized that he is not looking forward to the task with dread that one would suspect. In addition to the books in the law library Mr. Kavanaugh has thousands of volumes under his charge which are classified as general and which will be kept separate from the law books. In the new Capitol there is such space for 35,000 volumes in the law library alone. The shelves, several carloads of which are now in a junkyard, are built of steel and are sectional, or built, so that the books can be classified and changed without trouble.

It is probable that no effort will be made to move until about September 1, when everybody is back from a vacation and in condition to do this sort of work. They have been making plans for a dedication of the new building long before that time and committees have been working out the details of the exercises to be held but they have been a little ahead of time in their calculations and now the committees are going to wait until it can be known definitely just when the new building will be entirely finished and ready to be occupied.

FARM NEWS.

NEW KINDS OF VEGETABLES.

About three years ago the United States Department of Agriculture introduced a new radish from Japan, which immediately made its way as something both striking and valuable. It is an enormous white-skinned radish with leaves two and three feet long. The seed looks like that of the common radish, only, considerably larger. This radish is known by several names, the most common of which is Sakurajima.

It is claimed to reach the weight of thirty pounds in Japan. The heaviest one they were able to grow at the Rhode Island station weighed eighteen pounds, and in various tests with seed secured from various places it averaged fifteen pounds, which made a good sized radish.

It grows about a foot and a half long, and about eighteen inches in thickness. Its leathery skin is easily removed, revealing beneath a crystal whiteness, very solid, and in texture like an extremely fine apple. It tastes like our earliest radishes of the highest quality. It has the merit of being free from rankness or biting character even in the heat of summer or fall. It never grows corky or pithy and grows equally well in every kind of soil.

The Sakurajima may be eaten in many ways. It is sliced and eaten raw, or may be boiled and served very much as we cook turnips; in China and Japan it is sliced and sprinkled with salt and allowed to stand for about twenty-four hours, then washed and served. The leaves also are edible. They may be cooked as greens, are far more delicate than kale, and are finer for this purpose than any of the well-known greens used in different portions of the country.

Unlike the smaller members of the great radish family, Sakurajima is at its best in the summer time when all its early radishes have become unpalatable. Picked the last of November, after several hard frozes, it proved sweet and palatable.

Sea kale is not what can be termed a new garden vegetable, but it is classed among the "fancy" vegetables. It is not common, because an idea has prevailed that it cannot produce results worth while in less than four years. This has recently been proved an erroneous idea. It is a most delicious vegetable, combining as it does the flavors of asparagus, cauliflower and celery. The edible portions are the naked leaf stalks, which are forced and bleached.

They look at first like celery stalks, but have a distinctive taste of their own unlike any other vegetable.

It may also be cooked and served with drawn butter, in which form it resembles stewed celery, tastes something like bleached asparagus, but has withal a special delicious flavor all its own.

BUCKWHEAT FOR POULTRY.

Buckwheat is the best grain crop that we have ever tried to furnish a foraging ground for poultry.

I sow it late in July and allow the chickens and turkeys to harvest it. They are all the better for the exercise and the only cost is for the seed and work of preparing the soil and sowing it.

Late in last July I sowed about one acre where the chickens and turkeys could have free access. They began to work on it as soon as the grains were filled and have been at work on it for nearly two months.

If it is trampled down on the ground the grains will not damage unless it is warm enough to sprout them. Buckwheat will be on the ground all winter and grow in the spring.

A buckwheat stubble makes an excellent feeding ground for poultry during pleasant days throughout the fall and winter season and the poultry enjoy the exercise.

Our hens, pullets and September hatched chickens are all in fine condition, largely due to the buckwheat to which they have free access.

The plan of allowing them to harvest the buckwheat saves trouble of feeding and it also teaches them to depend upon their own efforts to obtain their food. Buckwheat whole grain has a nutritive ratio of 1 to 7, which can be reduced by furnishing some concentrated food.—A. J. Legg.

ITEMS ABOUT THE HORSE.

Don't stay in the field too late. A man never makes anything by overworking his horse. He is certain to lose somewhere. The strain may put him off his feed, and you will be out of a horse for several days. A horse is worth from five to ten dollars a day to the farmer during cropping-time, and it pays to conserve his energies, that he may always be ready for the task at hand. A sick or dead horse can never aid the farmer at cropping-time.—Farmers Home Journal.

If you starve the colt the first winter he is liable to come out very thin in the spring and worth less than when weaned.

Oats are the best general feed for a horse and go well with timothy hay. Once or twice a week give a feed of corn and clover with bran mash. Give only what will be eaten up clean.

Do not give horses water immediately after eating. An hour after they have finished their meal is soon enough to water them.

NOTES OF THE SHEEP FOLD.

Sheep are better fitted to grind their own grain than most animals, so it is not necessary to do this work unless the sheep have poor teeth. Valuable breeding ewes are sometimes kept until quite old and their feed should be ground.

Bowel troubles are generally caused by errors in feeding.

Success attends only the breeder who takes the utmost pains in selecting the stock.

A combination of quality and size should be aimed for in breeding.

As long as people wear fine woolen just so long will merino wool be in demand.

Commissioner's Sale.

Spencer Sweeney, Mfr.

Pikeville, Ky., July 2.—Creed Sowards, who shot and killed a young man named Elkins, on the head of Shelby three weeks ago, was held in the sum of $4,000, and now languishes in jail here. The cause of this killing was whiskey.

Following their marriage, which took place at Somerset, Wednesday afternoon, Dr. E. H. Atkinson and his bride, who was Miss Ella Gooch, daughter of Judge Gooch, of Somerset, stopped at the Phoenix Hotel Wednesday night and left for Salsberyville Thursday morning, where they will make their home. Dr. Atkinson is captain of Co. D, of the Second Kentucky Infantry and a nephew of former Auditor S. W. Hager.—Lexington Leader.

Miss Fanny Lear and C. Huffman were married Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's brother, Frank Lear, on Chloe, Rev. M. C. Reynolds officiating. The bride is the daughter of W. T. Lear, of Louisville, formerly of this place.

Michael Maynard, widower, nee Mrs. Hammond Williamson were married last night at the bride's home, back of the jail, Rev. M. C. Reynolds officiating. Both have tried and double harness several times before. Like the hens.

T. Ambrose Williams, of Ironsides, has accepted a position in the Geological Survey department, and was here today enroute to report for duty at Prestonsburg. The position is just during vacation, as he will resume his studies at the Ohio State University, in mining engineering, in September. Independent.

G. P. Archer, Tom Craft and J. M. Y., for $10,000. "Dad" Graves representing the successful bidders.

Uncle Sam has quite a bunch of representatives here looking after the boys who have been making and selling whiskey without license. Those composing this group are: Sam Collins, of Whitesburg, deputy collector; John Henry Eddington, of Whitesburg, deputy U. S. Marshal; Judge Tussey, of Greenup, special revenue agent, and Colonel Short, of Richmond, deputy collector. While here they arrested Bill McKee, charged with selling liquor and also Nelson Moore, charged with running a moonshine still on Beaver creek. They left with their prisoners for Pikeville on the 10 o'clock train Tuesday morning where they will have their examination.—Prestonsburg Herald.

Last week the Herald announced that Miss Norma Preston, daughter of Wm. Preston, of Flambeaux, and Wm. Ford, of East Point, had eloped to West Virginia and married. The item was given to us by Edgar Howell who had heard the elopement mentioned a number of times before he gave it to the Herald. We make this explanation inasmuch as the report of Miss Preston informs us the report is erroneous. We are sorry the mistake occurred.—Paintsville Herald.

On account of the illness of the regular judge, D. W. Gardner, Hon. Walter S. Harkins presided over the deliberations of the court Tuesday. The standing order of the court was one hundred dollars—pay, replevy or go to jail for the law breakers.

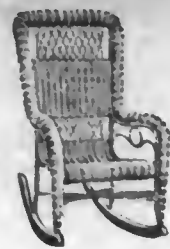

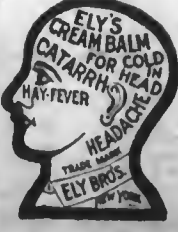

The trustees of the Prestonsburg Educational Division met here Saturday and selected teachers for the various schools in this division. H. L. Porter was elected principal, with Ernest Archer and Walker Porter as assistants of the Prestonsburg public schools.

The children of Mrs. Albert Stephens who have been attending school at the Masonic Home, Louisville, Ky., returned home Tuesday to spend their vacation. The Masonic Home Journal in its report of the roll of honor has always included the names of these children. Being the wards of Zebulon Lodge, the Masons here feel proud of the record which they have made.

Sam Stapleton has served notice of appeal in the contest between Dr. Hayes, Judge Litteral and himself. Each were candidates for County Attorney before the Republican primary held November 17, last, and the certificate of nomination was awarded to Hayes, he having a majority of 23 over Stapleton and about 30 over Litteral. Stapleton and Litteral instituted contest proceedings before the Johnson County Court which held that no nomination was made, whereupon Hayes served notice of appeal to the State Committee. Now comes the decision of the local committee, especially since the local committee by a vote of 8 to 4 voted that neither of the candidates had been nominated. The decision of a local committee is reversed by the State committee about once every thousand years.

Jesse Fry and one of his sons were arrested on Mill Creek, this county, by Sheriff Sam Crum Tuesday night, charged with breaking the windows in a camp car and demolishing the furniture and utensils contained in the car about two years ago. The offense occurred in Ohio, and the authorities have been on the lookout for the couple since that time. Tuesday Sheriff Crum heard that the pair were at work on Mill Creek and slipped upon them unawares. They were delivered over to the Ohio authorities Wednesday and Mr. Crum will receive a reward of one hundred dollars each for their capture.

How to Stand the Heat.

With the mercury flirting with the 90 mark and casting occasional glances at the century mark, and with the atmosphere saturated with humidity, how to safely stand the heat becomes a vital question.

Those who can afford to keep cool and refrain from exposure can avoid the risk of sunstroke or collapse and preserve health and comfort even in this weather by observance of a few simple rules and precautions. Observation of the same precautions so far as practicable will enable their less fortunate fellow citizens to minimize the dangers of the hot wave.

Dress lightly, eat sparingly, avoid alcoholic stimulants, keep out of the direct rays of the sun, don't work, keep your temper, and you will keep cool. Dress should be light in color as well as in weight, and such as to permit the body to perspire freely through all the pores. Perspiration gives vent to the internal heat. The body, when perspiring, parts with three times as much heat as when the skin is dry. To quickly check perspiration is dangerous, and a sudden involuntary arrest is always a bad sign.

Woman's Beauty

Some women retain their beauty to an advanced age. But women, who regularly endure pain, age rapidly, for suffering leaves its lasting marks on them.

Nearly all women suffer more or less with some form of female trouble. It should not be neglected. Avoid the pain—treat yourself at home by taking Cardui, as thousands of other women have done. Begin at once and give Cardui a fair trial.

TAKE CARDUI

It Will Help You

Mrs. Katie Burlison, Gorville, Ill., tried Cardui and writes: "I suffered with female troubles, and was so sick I could not stand on my feet. Finally I began to take Cardui, and soon began to mend. Now I am able to do all my housework and am in much better health than I was before." Try it.

A HALF-LIFE AND HALF A LIFE.

A Story That is Based on Big Sandy Experience and Was First Published Half A Century Ago

At length came the opening, the glimpse of sunlight. I remember, as if it were but yesterday, that afternoon which first showed to my eyes a sight something of that full life of which my imagination had framed a rude, faint sketch. I was standing at the end of the meadow, just where the rails had been thrown down for the cows, when, looking up the path that led through the wood by the river, I saw, almost at my side, a man on horseback. He stopped, and, half raising his hat, a motion I had seen before, said,—"Is this Squire Boarder's place?"

I pushed back my sunbonnet, and looked up at him. I see him now as I saw him then, for my quick startled glance took in the whole face and figure, which daggered themselves on my memory. A frank, open face, with well-cut and well-defined features and large hazel eyes, set off by curling brown hair, was smiling down upon me, and, throwing himself from his horse, a young man of about five and twenty stood beside me. He had to repeat his question before I gained presence of mind enough to answer him.

"Is this Squire Boarder's house, and do you think I could get a night's lodging here?"

It was no unusual thing for us to give a night's lodging to the boatmen from the river, or to the farmers from the back country, as they passed to or from Catlettsburg; but what accommodation had we for such a guest as here presented? I walked before him up the path to the house, and, whistling to my stepmother, who stood on the porch, said,—"That's Miss Boarder; you can ask her."

And then, before he had time to answer, I fled in an agony of bashfulness to my refuge under the water maple behind the house. I lingered there as long as I dared, longer, indeed, than I had any right to linger, for I heard my mother's voice crying, "Janet," and I well knew that there was nobody but me to mix the corn-cake, spread the table, or run the dozen errands that would be needed. I slipped in by the back door, and, escaping my step-mother's peevish complaints, passed into the little closet, which served us for pantry, and, recouping up the meal, began diligently to mix it.

The window by which I stood opened on the porch. My father and his men had come in, and, tipping their chairs against the wall, or mounting on the porch, were smoking, laughing, joking, and, in the midst of their talk, the stranger, smoking too, and joining in their talk with an easy earnestness that seemed to win them at once. Our country-people did not spare their questions. My father took the lead, the men throwing in a remark now and then.

"I calculate you have never been in these parts before?"

"No, never. You have a beautiful country here."

"The country's well enough, if we could clear off some of them trees that stop a man every way he turns. Did you come up from Lowiza to-day?"

"No, I have only ridden from the mouth of Blackberry. I believe you call it. I have left a boat and crew there, who will be up in the morning."

"What truck have you got on your boat?"

Lumber and so forth, and plenty of tools of one sort or other."

"Damn me if I don't believe you are the man who is coming up here to open the coal mines on Burgess's land." And the whole crowd gathered around him.

He laughed good naturedly.

"Yes, I am coming to live among you. I hope you'll give me a welcome."

There was a cheery sound of welcome from the men, but my father shook his head.

"We don't like no new-fangled notions, noways, up here, and I'll not say that I'm glad you're bringing them in; but, at any rate, you're welcome here to-night."

The young man held out his hand. "I are to be close neighbors, Mr. Boarder, and I hope we shall be good friends; but I ought to tell you all about myself. Mr. Burgess's land has been bought by a company, who intend to open the coal mines, as you know and I am sent up here as their agent, to make ready for the miners and the workmen. We shall clear away a little, and put up some rough shanties, to make our men comfortable before we go to work. We shall bring a new set of people among you, those Scotch and Welsh miners; but I believe they are a peaceable set, and we'll try to be friendly with each other."

The frank speech and the free, open face seemed to mollify my father.

"And how do you call yourself, stranger, when you are at home?"

"My name is George Hammond."

"Well, as I was telling you, you're welcome here to-night, and I don't know as I've anything against your settling over the river on Burgess's land. The people round here have been telling me your coming will be a good thing for us farmers, because you'll bring us a market for our corn and potatoes; but I don't see no use of raising more corn than we want for ourselves. We have enough selling to do with our lumber, and you'll be thinking out the trees.—But there's my old woman has got supper ready."

I listened as I waited on the table. The talk varied from farming to mining and the state of the river, merging at last into the politics of the country, and through the whole of it I watched the stranger; no need how different was his language from anything I had ever heard before; marked the clear tones of his voice, and the distinctness of his utterances, contrasting with the heavy, thick gutturals, the running of words into each other, the slow, slow drawl of my father and his men; watched his manner of eating. His neat disposition of his food on his plate; saw him move his chair back with a slight expression of annoyance, unmarked by anyone else as Will Foushee spit on the floor beside him. All this I observed, in a mood half curious, half sullen,—a mood which pursued me that night into my attic, as I peevishly questioned with myself wherein lay the difference between us.

"Why is this man any better than Will Foushee or Ned Burgess? He is no stronger or better able to do a day's work. Why am I afraid of him, when I don't care an atom for the others? Why do my father and the men listen to him and crowd round him? What makes him stand among them as if he did not belong to them, even when he talks of what they know better than he? There is not a man round Sandy that could make me feel as ashamed as that gentleman did when he spoke to me this afternoon. Is it because he is a gentleman?" And suddenly I resolved that I would be put down by no man. I was as good as he, and would show him to-morrow morning that I felt so. Then came the bitter acknowledgment, "I am not as good as he is. I am a stupid, ugly girl, who knows nothing but hateful housework and a little of the fields and trees; and he,—I suppose he has been to school, and read plenty of books, and lived among quality." And I cried myself to sleep before I had made up my mind fully to acknowledge his superiority.

It was one of my greatest pleasures to get up early. Our people were not early risers, except when work pressed upon them, and I often secured my leisure hour for the day by stealing down the staircase, out into the woods, by early sunrise, when, wrapped in an old shawl, and sheltered from the dew by climbing into the lower branches of my pet maple, I would watch the fog reaching up the opposite hills, putting forth as it were an arm, by which, stretched far out over the trees, it seemed to lift itself from the valley,—or, perhaps, carrying with me one of the few books which made my library, I would spell out the sentences and attempt to extract their meaning.

They were a strange medley, my books; some belonging to my step-mother, and others borrowed or begged from the neighbors, or brought to me by the men, with whom I was a favorite, and who knew my passion for reading. My mother's books were mostly religious; a life of Brainerd, the missionary, whose adventures roused within me a gleam of religious enthusiasm; some sermons of the leading Methodist clergy, which, to her horror, I pronounced stupid; and a torn copy of the "Imitation of Christ," a book which she threatened to take from me, because she believed it had something to do with the Papists, but to which, for that very reason, I clung with a tenacity not read with an earnestness which brought at last its own beautiful fruits. Then, there was the "Scottish Chiefs," a treasure-house of delight to me,—two or three trashy novels, given me by Tom Salyers, of which my mother knew nothing,—and (the only poetry I had ever seen) a song-book, which had, scattered among its vulgarisms and puerilities, some gems of Burns and Moore. These, my natural, unvisited taste had singled out, and I would erode them over to myself, set them to a tune of my own composing, and half sing, half chant them, when at work out-of-doors, till my mother declared I was going crazy.

This morning I did not read. I sat looking down into the water from my perch, carrying on the inward discussion of the night before, and wishing that breakfast-time were come, that I might try my strength and show that I was not to be put down by any assumption of superiority, when suddenly a voice near me made me start so that I almost lost my balance.

Mr. Hammond was standing beneath. He laughed, and held out his hand to help me down; but I sprang past him and was on my way to the house, when suddenly my brave resolutions came back to my mind, and I stood still with a feeling of defiance. I wondered what he would dare to say. Would he tell me how stupid he thought us all, how like the very pigs we lived? or would he describe his own grand house and the great places he had seen? I scowled up sullenly.

"Will you tell me where to find a towel, that I may wash my face here by the river-side?"

I laughed aloud, and with that laugh fled my sullenness. He looked a little puzzled, but went on,—

"I went to bed so early that I cannot sleep any longer; and if I could only find some way of getting across the river, I could get things under way a little before my men come up."

There were ways, then, in which I could help him,—he was not so immeasurably above me,—and down went my defiant spirit. The towel, a crash roller, luckily clean, was brought at once, and gathering courage as I stood by and saw him finish his washing, I said,—

"I can send you over the river in a few minutes, if you will go in our skiff."

"You? Can you manage that shell of a thing? Will your father let you take it, Miss Boarder?"

"My name is Janet Hainsford, and Squire Boarder is not my father," said I, some of my sullenness returning.

"If you will take me, Janet," said he, with the frank, open-hearted tone which had won my step-father the night before,—a tone before which my sullenness melted.

I jumped in, and, letting him pass me before I threw off the rope, reeled the little dug-out into the middle of the river. No boatman on the Sandy was more skilful than I in the management of the little vessel, for in it most of my leisure time had been passed for the last year or two. My step-mother had scolded, my father grumbled, and the farmers' wives and daughters had shaken their heads and "allowed" that Janet Hainsford would come to no good, if she was let foot about here and there, like a boy. But on that point I was incorrigible; the boat was my one escape from my daily drudgery, and late at night and early in the morning I went up and down among the shoals and bars, under the trees and over the ripples, till every turn of the current was familiar to me. I knew all the boatmen, too, up and down the river, would pull along-side their rafts or pushing-boats, and get from them a slice of their corn-bread or a cup of coffee, or at least a pleasant word or jest. And none but pleasant words did I ever receive from the rough, but honorable men whom I met. They respected, as the roughest men will always do, my lonely girlhood, and felt a sort of pride in the daring, adventurous spirit that I showed.

Whitesburg, Ky., July 2.—Disastrous rain and windstorms have visited various sections of Letcher county during the past five days. Millstone Creek and the headwaters of the Kentucky river were swept, and many cornfields were destroyed, fence swept away and houses flooded. For several hours the Kentucky river was the biggest it had been in years.

Owingsville, Ky., June 30.—Hoyt Robinson, one of the negroes dismissed from the army as a result of the Brownsville, Tex., raid, was arraigned to-day before Judge J. W. Lane on charges of carrying concealed weapons, shooting on the public highway and pointing weapon at another. He was given a fine of $100 and thirty days in jail for carrying concealed weapons, ten days in jail for pointing a weapon at Crit Johnson and $50 and twenty-five days in jail for shooting on the highway.

Robinson went to the home of Johnson, his father-in-law, and demanded that he get to talk with his wife. The family agreed to let him do this if done in a peaceable manner on which he became violent and threatened the family. Then Johnson ordered his son to get an officer. Then Robinson threatened to kill any one who attempted this and said there was no law in Kentucky and he would shoot up that place worse than they did Brownsville.

H. P. Creameans, a farm laborer from the Beech Fork district, a few miles south of Huntington came to that city to-day to consult a physician as the result of a piece of torture which does credit to the wildest deed on record in favor of the most fiendish savage with which American history has to deal.

Creameans' chin was a solid sore over a space covering probably four square inches of the surface. He tells a harrowing tale of how he was waylaid and bound Monday night while passing through a woodland lane. His captors carried him into the far corner of a field and after lashing him with switches and subjecting him to other tortures threw him upon his back, and using a pair of tweezers began deliberately to pull out his beard. Creameans has a heavy red beard which he shaves once or twice a week. His tormentors applied them selves industriously extracting the deep-rooted particles, never ceasing in their work until Creameans' outcries alarmed them. He claims that his tormentors kept up the torture for an hour or more, and he was wild and sick with the fearful experience.

Creameans presented a pitiable appearance to-day. He is utterly at a loss to account for the occurrence, and claims to have no clue to the identity of the perpetrators.—Ashland Commercial.

Clean Bread

5 CENTS A LOAF
The Bread That's Guaranteed

EVER hear of a guaranteed bread before? Sounds queer doesn't it. But that's the kind of bread the Clean Bread is—a bread that's guaranteed—a bread that must please you or your money is refunded.

But CLEAN BREAD is more than simply a guaranteed bread, however. It is a "home made bread." A bread such as you, Mrs. Housewife, bake in your own oven made in the very same way, yet it is a better bread, because it is made under the same condition day after day, by expert bakers who have spent years in practical bread making.

CLEAN BREAD is exceedingly rich in gluten. Much richer in fact than your own home made bread, because it is made from flour milled especially for our exclusive use—flour that produces a fine grained solid snowy white loaf, yet retaining all the nutriment of the whole wheat.

ROYAL BREAD is made in a clean, sanitary bakery, and baked in the finest continuous baking oven in the world.

We want you to try one loaf of CLEAN BREAD. We want you to taste it in every way possible, and if it does not suit you absolutely—if you do not think it is even better than the "home made" bread you bake, your grocery will refund the purchase price.

Now, that's claiming a heap for a loaf of bread, isn't it? But you'll agree with us that CLEAN BREAD is the best bread you have ever tasted, after you have sampled your trial loaf.

Order from your Grocer.

The pale horse and its rider paid us a visit last Saturday evening and took from us one of our oldest and best citizens, Joseph Kelly, of Rove Creek. Mr. Kelly has lived in this neighborhood for many years, and was loved by all who knew him. He was a faithful Christian and said that he was not afraid to die. He leaves a wife and four children to survive him. The funeral was preceded by Rev. C. Dean and the remains were placed in the Buchanan cemetery.

Fortune Telling

Does not take into consideration the one essential to woman's happiness—womanly health. The woman who neglects her health is neglecting the very foundation of all good fortune. For without health love loses its lustre and gold is but dross. Womanly health when lost or impaired may generally be regained by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This Prescription has, for over 40 years, been curing delicate, weak, pain-wracked women, by the hundreds of thousands and this too in the privacy of their homes without their having to submit to indelicate questionings and offensively repugnant examinations.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free.

All correspondence held as sacredly confidential. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's GREAT FAMILY DOCTOR BOOK, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, newly revised up-to-date edition—1000 pages, answers in plain English hosts of delicate questions which every woman, single or married, ought to know about. Sent free, in plain wrapper to any address on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to cover mailing only, or in cloth binding for 31 stamps.

Webbville.

The stork arrived at the home of H. N. Fischer June 28th and left a 14 1/2 pound baby boy. The last time the stork visited this home was 16 years ago, when he left a baby girl.

Judge Woods and daughter, Miss Dora, attended the Woods-Peebles wedding in Ashland Tuesday.

Bonds signed by Gov. Wilson were sent to Carter county demanding 5 per cent of Tivis Watson's estate, and came as a surprise to Mr. Watson's sister last week. Mr. Conway consulted a lawyer in regard to the meaning of Gov. Wilson, and found that when any man dies without issue or without making a will 5 per cent of his estate goes to the State.

Mr. Watson left a large estate, which passed to his sister, Mrs. O. G. Conway, and his brother, Dr. Ballard Watson.

Curt Thompson and wife attended the Sunday School convention at Louisa last week.

Nobody's Darling.

In Memory.

Whereas while on earth our Savior took little children in his arms and blessed them, and said, "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." And, whereas,

On Tuesday morning, June 28th, 1909, our dear little son, Howard T. Burns, Junior, of Pleasant Ridge, died.

Resolved, That this School hereby expresses its sympathy with the bereaved parents, grandparents, other relatives and friends.

Resolved, That we all, by the grace of God, endeavor in this and all things to say to our Father in heaven, Thy will, not mine, be done.

Mrs. G. A. Nash,
Mrs. F. F. D. Wallace,
E. M. Kemdon

On motion the above resolutions were adopted and ordered spread upon the minutes of the Sunday School, M. E. Church South, and a copy given to the parents and grandparents and a copy to the Big Sandy News and Sandy Valley Courier with request to publish.
